

Gone With The Wind

Scarlett O'Hara was not extremely beautiful, but men seldom realized it when caught by her charm as the Tarleton Twins were. Nor did they realize when they became frightfully ill that it was the touch of her velvety soft skin that made them so sick. For, disregarding all ladylike manners, Scarlett had neglected to wash her hands after attending to her business in the lady's parlor. Her delicate hands being so unguarded, were tenderly kissed by the twins, causing the unfortunate spread of an atrocious bacterial disease. Shame was brought upon both families, which was the worst disgrace of all.

This convenient reading material is brought you by Margaret Mitchell and the Child Care Health Consultation Program who remind you to Please Wash Your Hands With Soap and Water